School Board Report Card

A past concern of members of the Board of Education in the Lemon Grove School District is why more of the estimated 25,000 residents or 350 school employees haven't taken an active interest in what policies are laid down and how money is spent to educate the community's children.

The school board five — a full board this month for the first time since John Linn's resignation in March — will oversee the spending of more than five million tax dollars this school year.

It has been, therefore, a wonder why more than a few visitors rarely sit in on school board meetings to hear how their hard-earned dollars are being spent.

It may be that times are a-changin'.

Nowadays — specifically, during the last two months—school board members are wondering where all the people have come from.

It seems a collection of sensitive matters have cropped up all at once and the trustees, long accustomed to talking among themselves and to the walls and empty seats in front of them, now find themselves facing a crowd which often spills out into the lobby of the Lincoln street Education Center.

Teachers' first salary, benefit and working conditions contract arbitrated under collective bargaining guidelines; a controversial decision to begin phasing out free bus rides to students living far away from schools and a stream of other budget decisions questioned, after the fact, by citizens who weren't there when the decisions were made, have kept things jumping.

Many of the visitors are first-timers who either decided on their own or were coerced by a neighbor or a neighborhood coalition to forego the usual evening of television and relaxation to take up the role of concerned citizen.

Some have come away frustrated at what they interpret as the board's lack of rapport with its audience or of concern for their input.

It is a false conclusion derived by more than one recent visitor to the twice-monthly, Tuesday-night meetings.

Far from being private affairs, each meeting is open to citizens — more so than meetings in larger districts. Nearly every decision is chewed over and hammered out in front of whatever fraction of the public eye is open on any given school board meeting night.

Public input is welcomed during a regularly scheduled agenda item for that purpose. Comments are also tolerated from the audience during dicussions of other agenda items. That amounts to more opportunities to speak than one could expect at larger school district meetings such as those by our own Grossmont Union High School District.

But the time has come to make a cosmetic, albeit temporary, change on another public privilege — the right to listen.

The normal speaking voices of some board members and superintendents are sometimes not audible beyond the second row of seats, usually inaudible beyond the fifth row and always inaudible in the rear seats in spite of the fact that the board meets in a relatively small room

In lieu of forcing our school officials to shout for two or three hours, it would be wise to gather up sound amplification equipment from a school storage room and put it to use during these meetings.

It may or may not help the uninitiated member of the school board audience understand what is being discussed but it would go far to remove the aura of aloofness some feel school officials convey.

Setting a table microphone before each seated member, the superintendent and assistant superintendents would be ideal. Passing around a hand mike would be more awkward but better than nothing.

Either alternative would be a temporary arrangement.

This week teachers settled with the district on a contract. The smoke having cleared on that issue, it is a good guess that few members of the Lemon Grove Teachers Assn. will regularly fill the seats for a while.

Eventually, we predict, residents of outlying areas will grow weary of the board's lack of reserve action on the busing issue. The board has said repeatedly that it intends to do nothing about this since the year's budget is set. Regulars from that special interest will stop attending the frustrating sessions.

Probably not before the March school board election will the dredging of board meeting minutes for questionable decisions taper off, but they will.

However, until those peaceful days return, the board has an obligation to facilitate its audience. These people not only deserve to be heard, they deserve to listen.

The board gets high marks from this report card, but we're a bit concerned about its grade in cultivating community interest.

RESURFACE — The potholes are gone. For years they plagued shoppers who used the parking strip in the 7900 block on the south side of Broadway in Lemon Grove. 5 landlords with 17 stores spent nearly $10,000 to do the job. Andy Kerr, who operates a health food store at 7945 Broadway, worked 3 years to get owners together.
17 merchants who front on the improvement complained about lost patronage during the two days the strip was closed. The holes had become so deep that several shoppers threatened suits for damage to vehicles. Kerr said he ordered the work done immediately after he got the owners into agreement — holidays or not. "Not only that, it would cost more after the first of the year."
Lemon Grove's Arrow Electric Co. filled the holes free of charge about a year ago with material they had left from stop light jobs. The parking strip is privately owned and the county neither repairs nor stripes the areas. Patrons, who prefer to shop at home, will be happy with the new safety and convenience, some of the shop owners said.

Public Gets Look at Proposed City Budget

The past, present and future of the Lemon Grove incorporation effort were outlined last night as the committee for incorporation met the public at Lemon Grove Jr. High.

Copies of a County-prepared report detailing the form of government and budget projections during the first three years were presented, accompanying talks by committee co-chairman Jim Dorman, Dell Lake and Karen Thomson.

Much of the money to operate Lemon Grove as a city would come from state collected taxes, Jim Dorman, co-chairman of the Lemon Grove Incorporation committee, told a group at the meeting.

He used the county report listing the projected revenue and appropriations for the proposed City of Lemon Grove and figures released by the State Board of Equalization (sales tax) and the State Controller (cigarette, highway users and and auto license in lieu taxes). Cities get one per cent of retail sales tax levied within their boundaries.

The taxes are in addition to city and county collected taxes, he said.

Dorman compared the proposed city with its estimated 18,692 population with Carlsbad, population 20,000. While tax recovered funds are not

TV-Type Cops & Robbers Caper Nets 3 Suspects on San Altos St.

by Max Goodwin

It was like teevee's Hawaii 5-0.

But it happened in Lemon Grove about noon Thursday.

Three young blacks were cruising in the 1300 block of San Altos st. in their 1970 Chevy Nova.

They stopped. They went into the yard at the residence of Robert Eugene Davis at 1372 San Altos. They walked around the house looking at windows but finally left, according to a witness.

Later they returned. One lifted the hood of his Nova and examined the motor. Another sat in the car. The third walked to Davis' front door and kicked it in. No ceremony. He just kicked. The other two followed him into Davis' house.

A witness called the Sheriff's L.G. office. The office alerted the sheriff's helicopter (ASTREA). All headed for the "burglary in progress" on San Altos within minutes of the time the door was kicked.

Backyard Action

Mrs. Lillian Glatstein was in her backyard at 7333 Alberdi, nearby. She was watching the sheriff's low-flying ASTREA. She noted a black youth in an adjacent yard. A uniformed deputy sheriff ran around the corner of her house. He ordered her back inside. More police arrived. In her kitchen was another young black. She ran back out. The cop ordered her back in.

Inside, Will E. TeSelle, a visitor, had heard the commotion. The copter was low and reporting the path taken by the two other suspects who had fled. The suspects were also being pursued by cops on the ground.

TeSelle walked into the bedroom of the Glatstein home. There was the suspect. "Are you going to turn me in?" he asked TeSelle. TeSelle placed a hand on his shoulder and escorted him outside the house and into custody of the police.

One deputy saw a suspect jump a fence several houses down the street. He followed and likewise jumped with the copter just a few feet overhead. The copter pilot told where the suspect had taken refuge. He landed the copter in a nearby field and assisted in the apprehension on suspect 2. Suspect 3 was now cornered and captured by other ground troops.

Two houses had been thoroughly ransacked. So complete was the job that it would be two days before the list of removed items would be completed.

Weapons Found

A handgun and a knife was found at the scene. They were taken to the lab for fingerprints. Deputies found $375 in cash on one of the suspects. It could not be accounted for. It did not come from the victim's homes.

Deputies charged all three men with burglary. They were listed as Michael DeWayne Witherspoon, 18; Conyal Cody, 18 and Keith Lamont Williams, 17, all of San Diego. In less than an hour it was all over — just like the television counterpart and no one had been injured.

The Lemon Grove Rotary club is seeking the identity of the unnamed witness who notified police and started the action by which the suspects were captured.

The person, together with the deputy who engineered the operation, will be guests of the club. Both will be awarded the Rotary Certificate of Merit for becoming involved in a matter of community urgency.

There is no Community Watch program in that area but the witness did what members of the CW are trained to do — call the police when something appears suspicious.

Cruisers Return Tonight With Food, Toys for Christmas Needy

A drop-off point for donors of canned goods and usable toys has been arranged for tonight in Lemon Grove's central business district.

The brainchild of Phillip Giamanco, who also began the ill-fated Lemon Grove car cruises last year, the drop-off night is part of San Diego City Police Department's Operation 1000, its annual charity drive for the needy.

"Each year," explained Giamanco, "San Diego police solicit for contributions to Operation 1000. The goods are distributed to needy families in the San Diego region — not just the City."

A SDPD police van will be parked in front of Winchell's Donut Shop on Broadway from 7 to 10 p.m. tonight, Giamanco said. City police officers will supervise and accept donations through a drive-through arrangement on the parking shoulder off Broadway, a few doors east of Imperial ave.

"Donors won't even have to get out of their cars," promised Giamanco.

In addition to soliciting the public at large for donations, some 32 car clubs in the county will also show up to contribute what they have collected.

Giamanco, who is acting president of the Lemon Grove car club The Roadrunners and chairman of the San Diego Car Club Assn., recruited area clubs to help the cause. Members of clubs in Oceanside, El Cajon, Escondido, San Diego and Imperial Beach are expected to drop off their contributions in their show vehicles.

Although Giamanco declined to equate the evening with the car cruise and show-off nights earlier this year, he said club members plan to park vehicles during the drop-off time.

Santa Claus will also be among those visiting the drop-off site.

Both the County Sheriff's Dept. and the California Highway Patrol have been informed of the effort and have expressed approval, Giamanco said.

The Thursday night car cruises, which began last year and carried into this year, were originated by the Roadrunners under Giamanco.

Cruises degenerated when citations increased for traffic, littering and a variety of other offenses.

The Roadrunners disassociated with the cruises in late January.

Dec. 30 Filing Deadline

Council Candidates Announce Intentions

The quest for a governing body for the prospective City of Lemon Grove began this week at the Kearny Mesa office of the County Registrar of Voters.

While no one had filed papers for the councilmanic race a press time, this newspaper learned that five residents had taken out filing papers and that others intend to file before the December 30 deadline.

Included in the list of probables are Dell Lake, Jim Dorman and Robert Burns, who currently make up the Lemon Grove Fire Protection District's governing board.

If Lemon Grove becomes a city in March, the fire district will be dissolved. The fire department will then fall under the governance of the new city council.

By noon, Tuesday, the following had taken out filing papers for councilman but had not returned them:

Robert W. Swanson, 8225 Golden ave.; Maxine L. Grove, 7154 Mt. Vernon; Roger B. Prices, 8269 Golden ave.; Brian H. Cocaran, 3280 Olive st. and Travis W. Metcalf, 2519 Washington st.

Dell Lake, long-time Lemon Grove resident and businessman, said this week he intends to file for the election. Lake is a co-chairman of the Lemon Grove Incorporation committee and a past president of the Chamber of Commerce as well as serving on the fire board.

Dell Lake

His son, Craig, is the newly appointed member of the school board.

Attorney Jim Dorman, another co-chairman of the Incorporation committee, currently serves on the Lemon Grove school board and the Chamber of Commerce board of directors as well as the fire board.

Jim Dorman

A third co-chairman of the Incorporation group, Karen Thomson, accountant at John Factor VW, said this week she was undecided about whether to run for council but was

S.V. Kiwanis 'PanKake' Feast To Aid Youngsters, Seniors

A public "PanKake" feat will be served Saturday starting at 7:30 a.m. and until people quit coming at the Mt. Miguel High school cafeteria, it was announced by the Spring Valley Kiwanis club.

The club is sponsoring, cooking and serving the food with the proceeds going to youth, senior citizens and community projects. The unusual spelling of "PanKake" with its Kapital K is to emphasize it as a Kiwanis project, a club spokesman said.

The menu consists of panKakes, sausage, fruit juice, coffee or milk. Adults will contribute $1.50; children un-12—$1.

Some of the projects to benefit from the S.V. Kiwanis club project include sponsorship of the S.V. Park & Rec. District; a Kiwanis basketball tourney; a S.V. Little League team; Christian Athletes program, and other youth activities.

The club also sponsors the annual Kids' Day each September in which hundreds of youngsters take part and shares sponsorship in the new "Meals on Wheels" program with the Lemon Grove Kiwanis club.

"Share the Plow," a program supporting educational activities of Future Farmers and vo-ag students in the Grossmont High School District, is also a club project, which is shared by the Lemon Grove Kiwanis club and others in the general area.

The panKake event gives local residents an opportunity to enjoy a well-prepared meal, meet other residents including some of the community's leading business and professional people who will do the cooking and serving. Wives of Kiwanians will be waitresses at the meal.

Tickets are vailable from local Kiwanians and at the door. The school is at 1800 Sweetwater rd. Everyone is invited.

'Flivver' Winner To Be Announced

The more than 800 supporters of Lemon Grove's Old Time Days that have entered the "1911 (model) Flivver contest have only a couple of days to wait.

The winner will be announced shortly after 7 p.m. Saturday at the L.G. Fire Station at 7853 Central ave.

The 'Flivver', which runs on a 3½ HP engine at speeds of up to 25 MPH, is said to be worth $1,000.

In the same contest two WHA Mariners Hockey team tickets, an autographed Chargers football, and a bottle of liquor — the latter supplied by the L.G. V.F.W.— will be given.

The public is invited to participate.

Perkins Resigns from VdO Planning Chair

Job commitments and other responsibilities led to the recent resignation of Bob Perkins as chairman of the Valle de Oro Planning Association, the citizens watchdog committee overseeing planning and development in Spring Valley and vicinity.

Clarence Kaufman, formerly first vice chairman of VdOPA, replaced the chairman, according to John Steiger, 2nd vice chairman.

No successor to the first vice chairman has been selected.

Apartment Stove Lost

When Serena Vine arranged to rent her property at 9092 Avocado st., Spring Valley, she discovered the 250 GE electric stove that is part of the rental package, was missing.

She gave sheriff's deputies the name and license number of a suspect on December 2.

Teen-age Burglar

While Ruth Wilkelmim was working in her yard she spied a person moving about in her house at 7565 San Miguel st., Lemon Grove.

The thief fled when she entered, taking with him a man's wallet with credit cards and $60 in currency.

Later sheriff's deputies arrested a teen-age youth and charged him with burglary.

Shopper is Victim

While Clyde LeRoy Miller of 9400 Montemar rd. in Spring Valley was Christmas shopping, a burglar entered his residence and left with items valued at $695.

A partial list included a tape recorder, wallet, costume jewelry, three cameras including a zoom lens movie camera and an envelope containing $20.

Parade Date Set

Saturday, April 9 has been set as the date for the annual Lemon Grove Old Time Days Parade.

Hanukkah—First Battle for Religious Freedom

The Jewish holiday of Hanukkah celebrates the world's first battle for religious freedom.

Although events of the Hanukkah story unfolded more than 2000 years ago in the Holy Land, the idea of the holiday is still fresh, timeless, and close to the hearts of people of Jewish Faith.

Our own American ancestors also fought for religious freedom when they fled Europe and came to this country to follow their own forms of religious worship.

Jews throughout the world will begin the eight-day Hanukkah holiday at sundown, tonight (the 25th day of the lunar Hebrew month, Kislev).

In festive gatherings at home and in synagogues the story of Hanukkah will again be retold through games and tales, ceremonies and songs.

History Traced

The much fought-over Land of Israel was ruled by the successors of Alexander the Great during the second century B.C. Although the religion of the empire included worship of the many Greek and local gods, and worship of the emperor, for a time the idol-worshipping rulers allowed the monotheistic Jews to observe their own customs, laws and belief in one God.

The breaking point came when King Antiochus, who ruled over Syria and Israel, demanded that the Jews stop being Jewish. New laws forbade parents and teachers from instructing their children. Jews were forced to eat foods prohibited by their religion, to work on the Sabbath, and to pray and make sacrifices to Syrian gods.

The Jewish holy temple in Jerusalem — the country's religious and national center— was desecrated by Syrian authorities, who made it into a pagan shrine, and even stabled horses there.

Revolt and Victory

In 168 B.C., one and a half centuries before the birth of Jesus, the people of Judea determined to rebel and fight to the death — if need be — for their religious freedom.

Hilldwelling farmers and craftsmen left their crops and workbenches, took their families into hiding, steeled themselves for a long battle, and devised strategies to drive the Syrians out of the land.

First Mattathias, a courageous country priest, and later his five sons, led the rebellion for 28 years, until victory was won. One son, Judah, was nicknamed "Maccabee", or "Hammer", and the name Judah Maccabee came to symbolize resistance to the Syrian occupation.

The saga of the long, fierce war can be found in the Books of the Maccabees, which chronicle how a small but determined army of Jewish farmers overcame enormous odds and drove the powerful Syrian army out of the Temple and out of the capital city, Jerusalem. The victors cleansed the sancutary and relit the Temple lamp, who was kept continually burning as a symbol of the presence of God.

The whole nation celebrated when the Temple was rededicated to the worship of the one God. The festival was called Hanukkah, which means "dedication".

Eight-Day Miracle

According to legend, only enough pure olive oil was found to keep the Temple lamp burning for one day, but miraculously the oil lasted for eight days until more was brought in from the embattled countryside. For 2100 years Jews have commemorated the victory and the miracle by celebrating Hanukkah for eight days.

Each evening, family and frieinds gather around a special, eight-branched candelabrum called a menorah or hanukevah. Prayers are sung to an ancient melody while the candles are lit, and everyone joins in joyful songs recounting the heroism of Judah Maccabee and his followers. Each evening a light is added until, on the last day, eight candles are burning.

Everyone enjoys the traditional holiday treats — crisp potato pancakes and sweet jelly donuts — and the traditional gambling games played with the draydel or s'veevone, a spinning top. Hebrew letters on the four side of the top remind players of the great miracle that happened once in the land of Israel.

Children receive holiday gifts or "Hanukkah gelt" — either real pocket money or chocolate candy from Israel wrapped to look like gold coins.

Hanukkah is a national holiday in the State of Israel. Each year the festivities begin with the kindling of a torch at Mod'een, the little village where the Maccabees were born. Relay runners carry the blazing torch up the hills to Jerusalem, where they light the huge eight-branched lamp at the Western Wall of the Temple Mount. Crowds gather to sing, dance, and celebrate Israel's long-ago war of independence.

Food Survey Shows Best Buys Vary at Area Grocery Stores

Although the cheapest place to buy groceries in San Diego is Fedmart, the market chain may not be the best place if you're shopping for one or two items.

The California Public Interest Research Group (CALPIRG) revealed that finding and more in its latest of a series of food price surveys.

The survey not only ranks the nine major food chains according to how they price a "market basket" of select items; added is a price percentage analysis of nine different food categories.

Also, for the first time, reports show a separate percentage comparison of name brand and house brand foods.

Some 120 items were surveyed over a three day period in October by more than 60 volunteers in 48 stores throughout the area.

In overall comparisons, Fedmart ranked cheapest, followed by Vons, Gemco, Alpha Beta, Food Basket, Big Bear, Safeway, Thriftimart and Mayfair. Mayfair, highest priced in the survey, was 9.62 per cent more expensive than Fedmart.

Fedmart ranked cheapest in both store brand and name brand totals, but was not cheapest on several individual food items.

For example, the best place to stop for a jug of milk or a tub of cottage cheese might be a Thriftimart, ranked the cheapest place to buy dairy products, both name and house brands.

Fedmart offers the best bargains in both name and house brand meats, bakery & cereals and frozen foods, but is one of the worse places to shop for produce, according to the survey. Fedmart's produce prices surveyed were 18.8 per cent above those charged at Safeway, the cheapest.

While five of the chains showed lowest prices on at least one food category, Gemco, Food Basket, Big Bear and Mayfair failed to show best buys on any of the nine food categories, neither in the name brand nor the house brand studies.

In the store brand study, Fedmart's lowest overall was followed by Gemco, Vons, Alpha Beta, Food Basket, Big Bear, Safeway, Thriftimart and Mayfair.

"Store brands are often cheaper than name brands and are of high quality," explained Miles Frieden, CALPIRG co-director. "Therefore we felt it important to compare these prices to allow consumers to choose the least expensive market for store brands as well as name brands."

"Of course, there is no control over the quality of the varying brands," he said. "Consumers will have to make that choice for themselves."

Free copies of the food price survey are available from the CALPIRG office, 334 Kalmia st., San Diego, 92101. A self-addressed, stamped envelope is requested.

Tell It to Grand-ma

By Edith Macias

What?

Grandma again?

I'm afraid so. These kids just keep on talking and if I don't get a chance to tell someone I'm gonna explode like a condensed atom bomb.

In this day of high inflation we all know there is no such thing as instant wealth. We have to acquire one item at a time. That's the way it is with this young couple who wanted another baby. I don't know why. They still had the old one — and he was four. They wanted another baby and they wanted a camper-trailer.

Being practical they realized that if the baby came first they would probably never get the camper-trailer and they discussed this at length in the presence of their four-year old. They agreed that after the truck-camper was paid for, then they would have their baby.

The Big Day finally came when dad drove the new truck into the yard. The little guy was excited as his parents and asked, "Is it all ours, dad?" And is it all paid for?"

His dad assured him that it was. So seating himself in the cab he said in a matter-of-fact tone, "OK, now let's go get the baby."

But sometimes I think of the baby we could do nicely without. The other night we had a houseful of company, and, as usual I was sitting on the floor playing with the kids. This little two-year old kept pulling at the top of my jeans. I said, "what are you doing?"

And he answered "Grandma wet?"

Well, that's the way I do him but that just about brought the house down and I wished I was somewhere else . . . anywhere else.

A lady tells me she had to make some life-sized dummies for a program of some sort. A little boy dummy and a little girl dummy. This hadn't been mentioned for a day or two and, out of the blue, her four-year-old son comes up with, "Mommy, when are you going to make them brats?" "What brats?" asked mom.

"You know, the little boy brat and the little girl brat." Brats? Dummies? It figures! And that will do to quit on.

See you next week.

Sidewalk Surfers Skating With Disaster, Says Health Director

The State Director of Public Health, Jerome Lackner, has issued a statement about a hot selling Christmas item—skateboards.

"Skateboards have experienced a real upswing in popularity and unfortunately they now account for many injuries to riders and pedestrians each year," says Lackner.

"Most of these accidents can be traced to not knowing how to ride or using a poorly constructed board."

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety commission estimates that next year skateboards will account for 11,000 injuries which will require hospital emergency room treatment.

Beyond quality considerations, Lackner suggests discretion in choosing a place to skateboard.

Avoid congested areas, he says. "Look for empty parking lots or similar locations where there is no moving traffice."

Places to legally ride the boards are dwindling. Local governments have followed a wave of skateboard riding with a wave of ordinances and bans prohibiting the activity in certain places.

San Diego has banned skateboard riding within city limits.

A skateboard is just a board on wheels, but regularly checking and maintaining the equipment is a means of preventing injury, Lackner says.

"Loose ball bearing wheels are very common. If they're not checked and adjusted daily the rider suffers the chance of losing a bearing, which means the board will sooner or later come to an abrupt halt."

The International Skateboard Association lists five basic rules of skateboarding: 1: Obey all city and state traffic rules. 2: Always wear protective gear. 3: Don't skateboard at night. 4:Don't ride faster than your ability. 5: Conduct a visual technical check of the board.

The California Skateboard Association says falls are bound to occur so one of the most important prerequisites for a skateboard rider is to learn how to fall properly and lessen the impact of vulnerable parts of the body.

"Before you ride make sure streets are safe," says Lackner. "Try to anticipate potential problems, look for manhole covers that might cause a fall or debris on the roadway. Remember, a skateboard has no brakes. So make sure your child understands not to skateboard on steep hills where he'll build up too much speed and lose control."

Wants Rating System for Television's Violent Side

A new type of rating system for television has nothing whatever to do with what shows are tops.

A past president of the California Medical Assn. recommends development of a "violence rating system" similar to the lettered rating codes employed by the movie industry.

Dr. Thomas Elmendorf encouraged the American Medical Assn.'s policy-making delegates to urge television to make the ratings itself, rather than ask the government to impose them.

"The evidence is clear that violence is harming our kids and our society, and something must be done about it," Elmendorf told the delegates at a December convention.

"Study after study has shown that when children watch violent television they, too, behave more violently. Some psychiatrists have tied TV violence with the epidemic rise of murders in our society."

He said TV networks already are rating the violent content of their programs, but only for internal use.

Local Calendar Is First for Area Girl Scouts

Girl Scoutes are now selling the 1977 Girl Scout Calendar, the first specially produced calendar by the San Diego-Imperial Council.

With drawings and photographs in beige and sepia tones, the calendar depicts Camp Winacka, the new Girl Scout camp near Julian. Camping is the theme of the calendar, focusing on the opportunities availabile for Scouts to grow and discover through a program in the out-of-doors.

Each sells for $1.

Profits will be divided among individual troops for special excursions and activities, and to Camp Winacka for construction of a fourth complex of sleeping cabins on the 580-acre facility.

Scouts are selling the calendars door-to-door and in booths in time for tucking into Christmas packages.

Your Dog's Gift— A New License Tag

Owners of nearly 100,000 dogs whose licenses expire December 31 will receive renewal applications from the county tax collector before Christmas.

James E. Jones said his office would begin mailing the applicatiions Friday.

Each form will be preprinted to show the owner whether the expiring license may be renewed for one or two years without getting a new rabies vaccination for the dog.

License fees will be the same as last year's — $6 for a one-year license for spayed or male dogs and $10 for a two-year license. The rates of unspayed females are $12 and $20. A late fee of $2 will be charged for payments received after February 28.

Jones said that owners of females spayed after January 17, 1972, are entitled to one free license. Since the free license can be for either a one- or two-year period, he suggested that the owner of a spay whose vaccination expires in a year could purchase a one-year license now and take advantage of the two-year free license next year.

Applications for first time licenses are available at veterinarians's offices and other locations throughout the county.

Owners of previously licensed dogs should use the renewal forms mailed to them by the tax collector to avoid possible duplicate billings, Jones said.

The renewal applications will be mailed only to owners of dogs whose licenses show a 1976 expiration.

Dog owners with licensing questions can call 236-3171.

Boise State Here Tonight For Cage Game with Aztecs

The S.D. State U. basketball team prepares to meet Boise State tonight at 8 in Peterson Gym and then take to the road for a Monday game with the U. of New Mexico.

The Aztecs bring a 1-5 record into the week's action after suffering a 67-63 loss to USD and a 118-113 thriller to Nevada (Las Vegas).

The Las Vegas game set 7 Aztec records and 8 S.D. Sports Arena records. The Aztecs and Runnin' Rebels raced up and down the court for better than two-and-a-half hours and delighted the third largest Aztec basketball crowd in history of 5,221.

Boise State, an NCAA Playoff team last year, brings a 1-5 record to San Diego despite losing just two starters from last year's team. The Broncos are led by guard Steve Conner who is averaging 18.7 points per game. He is joined in the starting lineup by 6-7 forward Dan Jones, 6-5 forward Trent Johnson, 6-8 forward Kevin Goetz and 6-8 center Sean McKenna.

New Mexico (4-3) was off to a fast start, posting wins over New Mexico Highlands, Colorado and Wisconsin-Parkside, but lost a 112-103 shootout to rival New Mexico State and dropped two of three games in Hawaii last week.

The Lobos, however, are extremely tough in their own University Arena which seats 17,121. Last season the Lobos led the nation in attendance, averaging 16,101 per game.

Sportscasters-Sportswriters Make 5 Scholarship Awards

Five journalism majors of San Diego State University were recipients Tuesday, December 7 of the San Diego Sportscasters / Sportswriters Assn. annual scholarship awards. Each shared $1,250 in awards equally.

One, John Alexander Hernandez, 22, a junior, is a member of S/S/A. He gained professional stature as a "color" radio broadcaster for the San Diego Mariners, WHA hockey team.

He has also served as sports director for KCR, SDSU radio and as news editor on KDEO.

Daniel Lee McLean, 26, began studies towards an M.S. in mass communications in 1974 and switched to news editorial.. He is editor of SDSU's Daily Aztec and worked professionally on the La Mesa Scout newspaper.

Jim Lawson, 21, a senior, wrote many original short stories before becoming interested in journalism. He won several writing awards in three years he wrote for his high school newspaper as he covered the varsity high school tennis team, of which he was a member. He is now a reporter for The Aztec.

John J. Duclose, 27, has a B.A. in English (SDSU) and an M.A. in Education (U. of N. Colorado). He is in broadcast journalism and interned at KGTV ch. 10, and broadcast news and public service programs on Mission Cable 2. He is president of the campus chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi. He will seek a doctorate and teach college journalism.

Won 3 Top Awards

Reggie Smith, 20, a senior won three top awards for 1976-'77; the Daily Aztec's "Reporter of the Year" award; Copley Newspapers Journalism award and American Newspaper Publishers Assn. Journalism award. He will teach journalism.

Funds for S/S/A/ scholarships come from gridiron banquets the group stages each year at which some deserving sports personality wins the "Golden Jock". Peter Graham, landlord of the S.D. Sports Arena and Dr. Leonard Bloom, owner of the now defunct S.D. Conquistadors franchise, are past winners.

Other funds are generated from media-sports celebs/public golf tournaments.

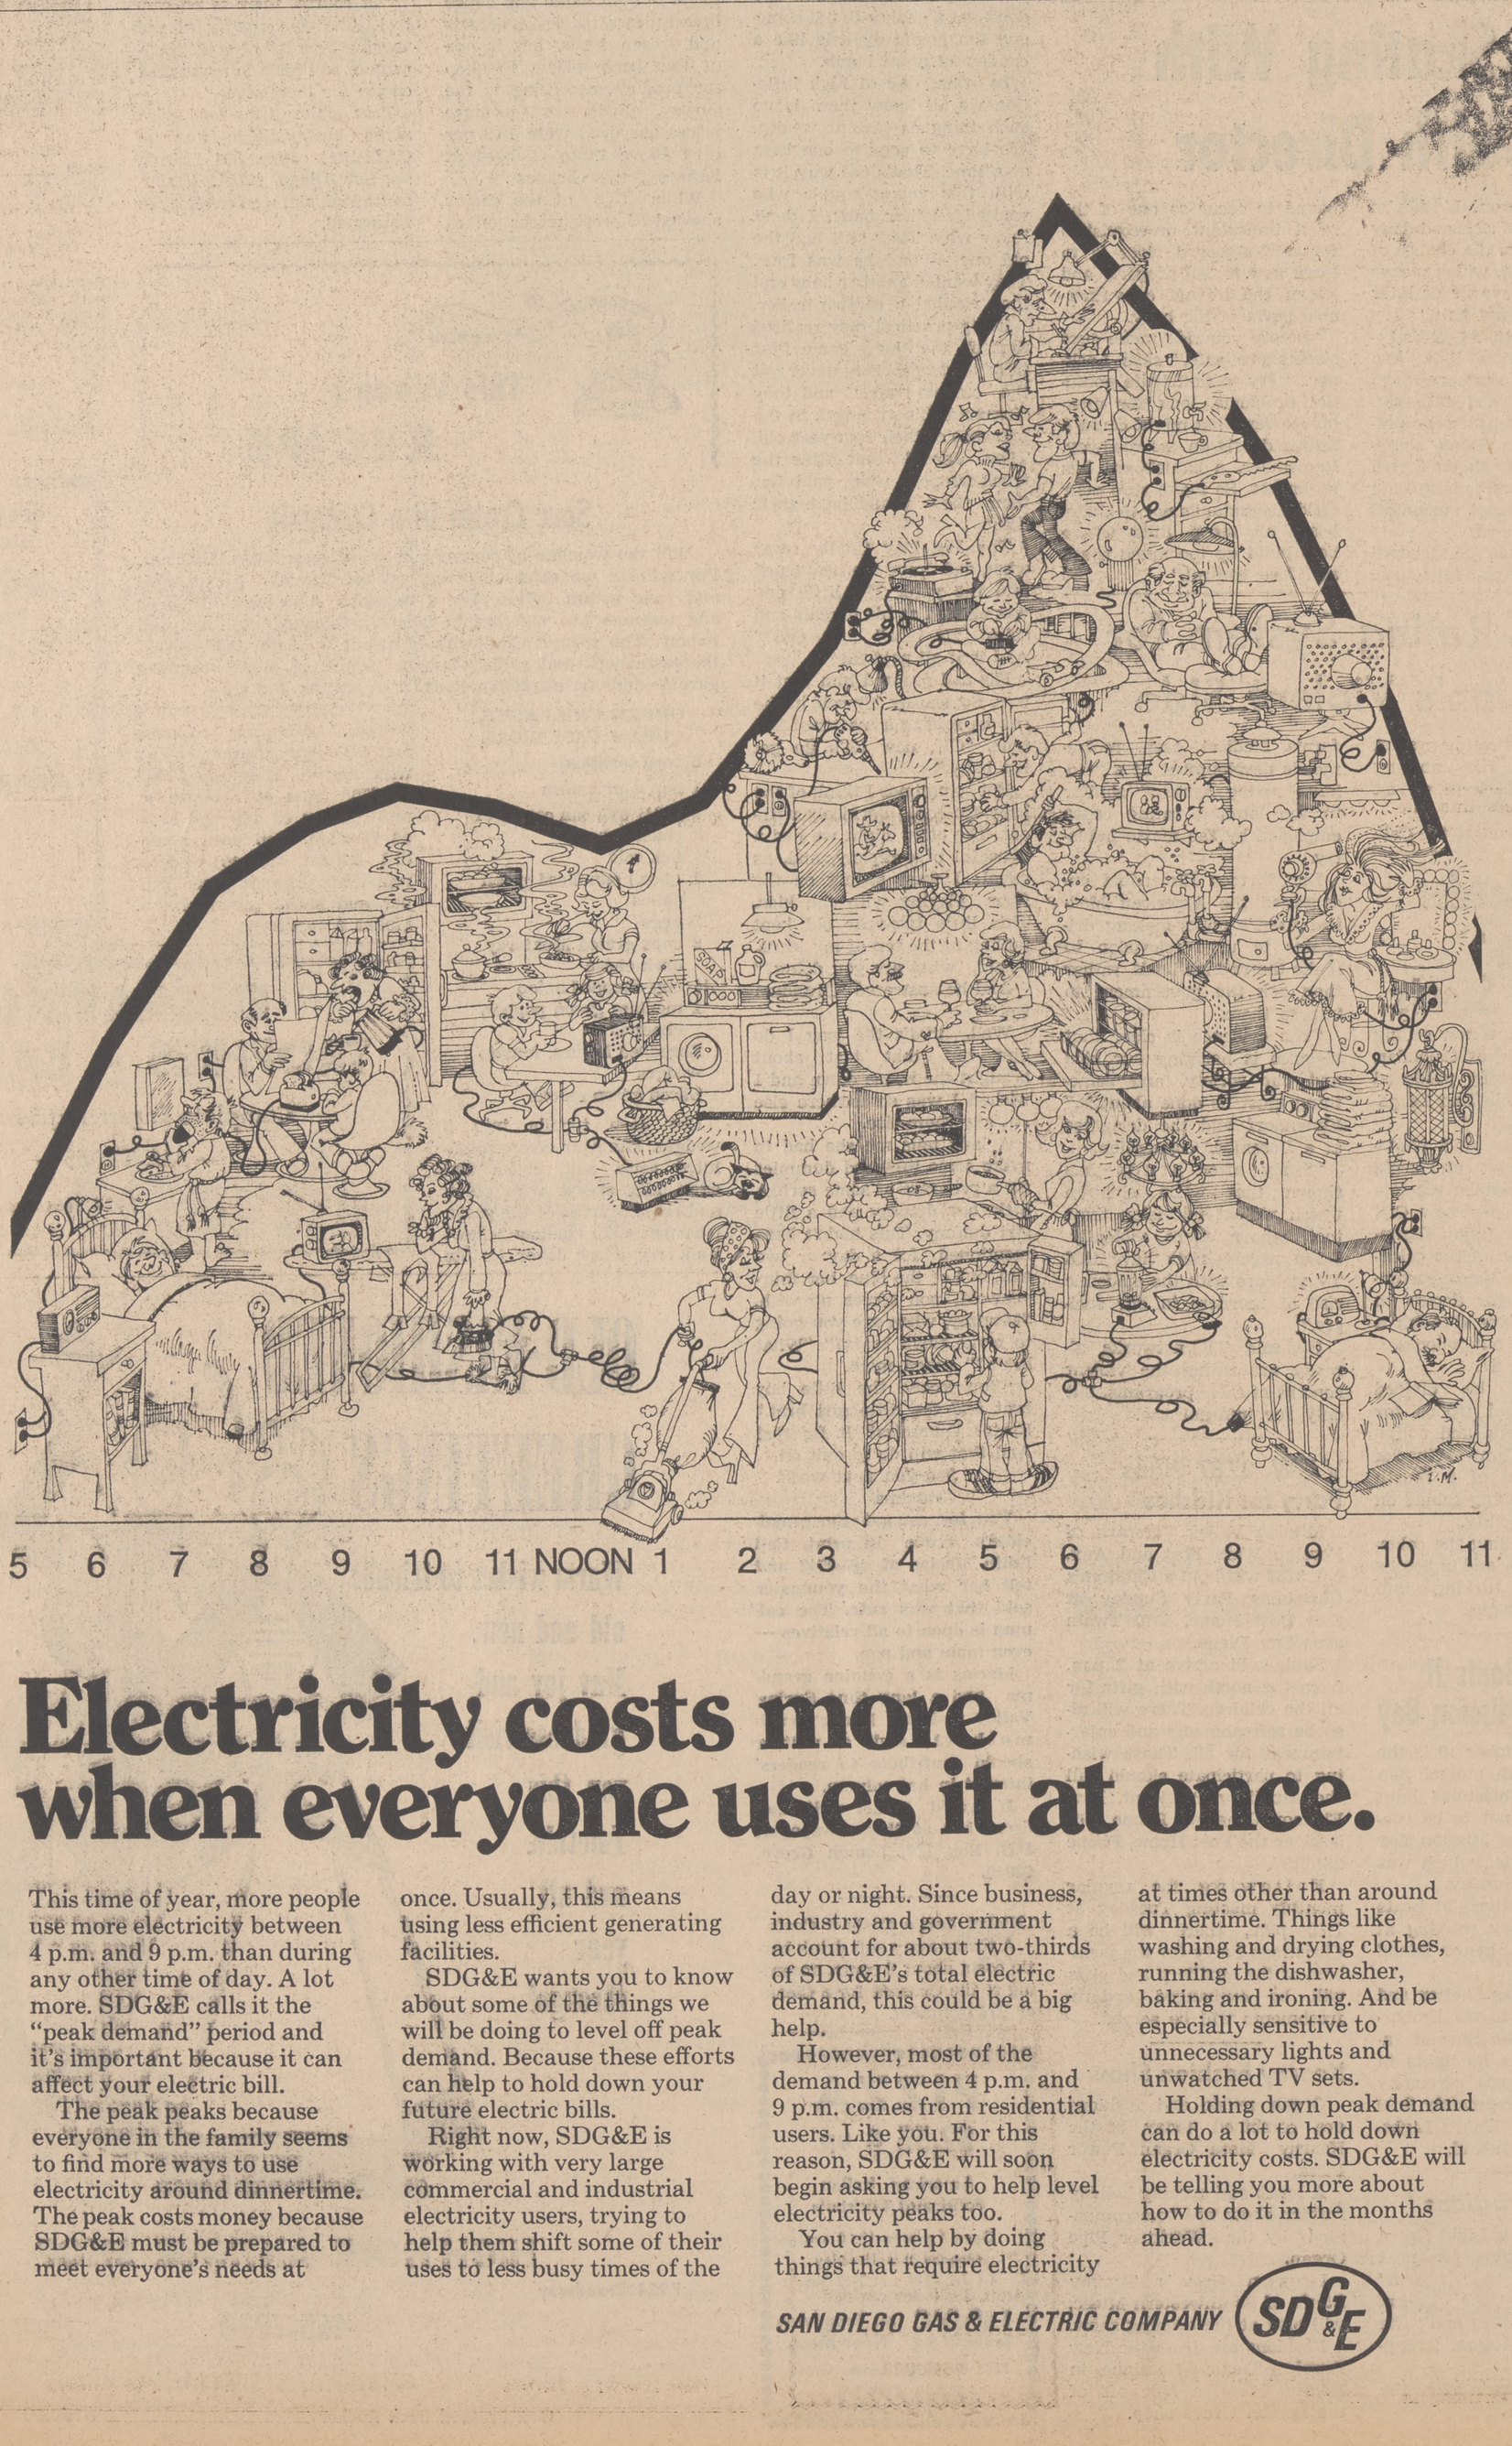
DeMott Presides

John DeMott, sports director of radio KSDO, is president.

The group meets each Tuesday noon at Town & Country Hotel in Mission Valley where a lineup of sports figures parade to the lectern to provide many of the items used in the media on ensuing days. The meetings are pressworking sessions and the public is not invited.

S/S/A was organized years ago to provide a forum for those who wanted to provide news information to the media without spending days visiting each news outlet. It also saves the press considerable running about attending press conferences which would otherwise be called throughout the week.

Prior to the presention of the awards to the SDSU students by DeMott, Dr. Jim Julian, journalism professor emeritus SDSU, said the scholarships made another semester possible for some of the recipients.



Chargers Record Best in 5 Years

Quarterback Dan Fouts was the No. 8 passer in the AFC. In his fourth year, Fouts attained personal milestones of 208 completions, 2,535 yards, a 57.9 percentage and 14 touchdowns.

Wide receiver Charlie Joiner, the team's MVP, finished sixth in the AFC with 50 catches for 1,056 yards, a 21.1 average and seven touchdowns. His 42 points led the Chargers in scoring.

Running back Rickey Young finished in the AFC top 10 in rushing and receiving. He was the No. 9 rusher with 162 attempts, 802 yards, a 5.0 average and four touchdowns. He was the No. 10 receiver with 47 catches for 441 yards, a 9.4 average and one touchdown.

Safety Mike Fuller was third in AFC punt returns with 33 for 436 yards and a 13.2 average. Linebacker Don Macek was selected to the UPI all-NFL rookie team. Left guard Doug Wilkerson was named Most Outstanding Lineman by his teammates for the third successive year.

Olivet Nazarene College (Ill.), University of California, San Diego and host Point Loma College.

Game times are 1:30 p.m., 3:30 p.m., 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday with the championship game set for 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

Before Medicare

Egyptians may have unknowingly been the first to use penicillin when they used moldy bread as a compress for wounds.

Electricity costs more when everyone uses it at once.

This time of year, more people use more electricity between 4 p.m. and 9 p.m. than during any other time of day. A lot more. SDG&E calls it the "peak demand" period and it's important because it can affect your electric bill.

The peak peaks because everyone in the family seems to find more ways to use electricity around dinnertime. The peak costs money because SDG&E must be prepared to meet everyone's needs at once. Usually, this means using less efficient generating facilities.

SDG&E wants you to know about some of the things we will be doing to level off peak demand. Because these efforts can help to hold down your future electric bills.

Right now, SDG&E is working with very large commercial and industrial electricity users, trying to help them shift some of their uses to less busy times of the day or night. Since business, industry and government account for about two-thirds of SDG&E's total electric demand, this could be a big help.

However, most of the demand between 4 p.m. and 9 p.m. comes from residential users. Like you. For this reason, SDG&E will soon begin asking you to help level electricity peaks too.

You can help by doing things that require electricity at times other than around dinnertime. Things like washing and drying clothes, running the dishwasher, baking and ironing. And be especially sensitive to unnecessary lights and unwatched TV sets.

Holding down peak demand can do a lot to hold down electricity costs. SDG&E will be telling you more about how to do it in the months ahead.

'Win with Honor' — a Winsom Book

Story of Pro Football, Coryell Style, Gives Game Dignity, Respectability

by Max Goodwin

There will be two kinds of reactions to a splendid book written about the life and times of Don Coryell.

Don Coryell, as one group knows, is the former coach of the San Diego State University football team — the Aztecs. To them it will be an exercise in nostalgia. To those who do not follow football it will be almost unbelievable. They'll claim they don't make men like Coryell any more — a man to be trusted and who respects human dignity.

But they do. Donald David Coryell, now head coach of the St. Louis Cardinals, is that kind of man. Joe Stein and Diane Clark tell about Don in their Joyce Press hardback, "Win With Honor". It is now on the shelves of better bookstores.

Stein is the young, talented sports editor of the San Diego Evening Tribune. Clark is the education editor of the San Diego Union.

"Win With Honor" tells of Coryell's personal and football lives to the mid-1976 season of the NFL St. Louis Cards.

"Honor" is not an exciting book. There are no cliff-hanging climaxes. There is pornography as in "The Nightmare Season" about the Chargers. It is more "Frank Armstrong, the All-American Boy" stuff and will certainly bring more credibility to football coaching than anything since John Weibusch's "Lombardi" in 1971. Above all, the reader will enjoy this study of a living legend who is both an honorable man and an honorable coach — and this opinion is offered by this writer by personal knowledge.

"Win With Honor" has an amusing bit near the beginning. After graduation from U. of Washington, Coryell was football coach at a high school in Honolulu, and after that, the U. of British Columbia where his record was 11-1. His first important step upward, he thought, was the job he took at Wenatchee (Wash.) Junior College.

A well-known school? Not exactly. Enroute to apply for the job he stopped at a service st ation and asked directions to the school. The attendant had never heard of it. Coryell eventually found it three blocks away from the service station!

From Wenatchee, it was Ft. Ord to coach the service team, then to Whittier, and later, SDSU.

Admirers Plentiful

As head coach of the Aztecs he developed probably the largest group of media (and others) admirers of any coach in the game. His credibility was never questioned.

At State his record, 1961-1972 was 104-19-2. No wonder St. Louis wanted him. In 1973-74-75 at St. Louis, his record was 4-9-1; 10-4-0 and 11-3-0.

As this review is being written, the St. Louis Cardinals-New York Giants game is being played for the NFC wildcard. The Cards won it 14-11. Later in the day, Washington trounced Dallas. Both winners were 10-4 on the season but Washington has beat St. Louis twice during the season and those few points gave the Wildcard rights to Washington.

Laced through the book are quotes from sports figures every fan will recognize. All of them attest to Coryell's honesty and sincerity.

Jerry Magee, San Diego Union sportswriter, calls him "part George Allen, part Lombardi, part Dear Abby."

When 40,447 turned out at S.D. Stadium to see Coryell and the Cards in his first San Diego professional appearance, the Cards won 17-13. Middle linebacker Jamie Rivers presented the game ball to Coryell. "It is a token of appreciation to show him we care about him as much as he cares about us . . . he'd made everyone want to play this year. He treats you like a man and all of us are happy to be here. The dude is beautiful," Rivers said.

He Loves His People

Following a game against the L.A. Rams won by the Cards 34-27, Donnie Anderson, who scored three touchdowns said, "His honesty and leadership has overwhelmed everybody . . . he loves his people and can associate with them on his level or theirs."

Robert Burnes, a St. Louis sports writer, tells a story about Coryell that anyone who followed the Aztecs into the awards banquets can mentally duplicate.

Said Burnes, ". . . I was sitting next to Don after the 1974 season at a dinner to honor the football team. Don was to make the introductions and all through dinner he worried about saying something nice about eveyone . . . Now there were 47 men men on the roster plus a few strays and he said something kind and good about every one of them. He was up there for something like an hour and 20 minutes."

Jack Buck, a St. Louis broadcaster of both the baseball and football Cardinals said, ". . . people don't believe he really is that intense, that it's a facade.

. "Coryell — that's the way he is, no matter where you see him. What you see is what you get. The biggest thing about Coryell is that people trust him. He's the same way all the time."

Great Confidence

Says Coryell about himself, "I have what I guess you'd call confidence in people. I've had players in trouble elsewhere come with me and make it big. I trusted them, respected them, and I have coaches who do the same.

"I honestly have had very few disciplinary problems over the years, but I've always been able to handle t h e m. And when a player won't fit in, there's only one place for him — out!"

Said Rich Koster, another St. Louis columnist regarding cutting popular players when they are no longer able, "He's tough. I never met another coach in any sport where there wouldn't be an execption for a player growing old or doesn't belong and make a place for him on the squad."

The survivors might disagree with the decision, but they knew politics didn't play a role in it."

Deep Principles

Stein, the co-author says, "Coryell has deep, deep principles, but it's almost as if he's programmed to do the right thing, rather than sitting back and verbalizing it."

"This comes through to anyone who has followed Coryell for any length of time. He doesn't just enjoy a record of great success, he reflects a special dignity in winning — and losing."

A St. Louis newspaper said editorially, "Don Coryell's distinction is this: He approaches his job in a manly manner, never grandstanding, never bullying and never playing crybaby.

"And Don Coryell, in a class by himself, is the Class Guy of 1975!"

Come to think of it, "Win With Honor" is one heck of a success story. And let me retract my lead. The book is exciting. Exciting in a clean, wholesome way. The kind of a guy you'd have no qualms about in nominating for the nation's presidency.

And let me add a special thanks to Stein and Clark for doing a character study on a sports celebrity that let's the good of man shine through.

TAKE FIVE

By John E. Wirges

The Greatest Christmas gift a guy could ever get

There is no doubt about it. It's like a dream.

The All-American dream for every red blooded kid that ever swung a bat and pretended to be Mickey Mantle or Hank Aaron.

Or hoisted up his britches and fired a rock at a tree, a sign or a toad transposing his action into a high, hard Sandy Koufax bullet or the dipsy-do of Randy Jones' sinker.

It's a baseball school. A week long baseball school, right here in sunny San Diego.

It runs from Christmas plus one until New Year's eve. A real, live, get out and "live-in" baseball school run by major leaguers for boys in the 10 through 16 league. What a great gift of St. Nick to bring.

First off, it's big time. Real major league all the way. Roger Craig, San Diego Padres pitching coach and founder of the San Diego School of Baseball has gathered a staff of experts to serve as instructors for this Christmas season camp that out do any spring training teaching roster at any major league camp in either league. Call 582-2560 and find out.

Who better can teach the art of infield play than Cincinnati Red's second baseman Joe Morgan? Old Mr. MVP, himself.

Is pitching your game? You're in luck. Pitching instructors start with Cy Young award winner Randy Jones and include lefthander Tom House of the Boston Red Sox, along with righthander Dave Freisleben, portsider Brent Strom and Co-rookie-of-the-Year Butch Metzger of the Padres Hitting comes under the tuteiage of Bob Skinner, who knows a thing or three about swinging. He belted the ball at better than a .300 clip four times in his 12 year major league career and two of his more than 1000 homers cleared the right field stands, including the 64 foot high scoreboard in Pittsburgh's old Forbes Field.

Dave Winfield and Morgan will add the long and short of hitting secrets. Dave is 6-feet, 6-inches tall and has a big strike zone, while Morgan, at 5-feet, 7 inches, uses compact power for his home runs.

And after getting on, the thing to learn is base running. Learning what to look for in a pitcher's motion, how to take a lead, how far off to get to force a throw and still keep the margin needed for a safe return. How to go from first to third on a single.

And who better could teach base running than former Dodger great Maury Wills? In his time, Maury was accused of stealing first, the hardest bag of all to swipe. His speed and base running skills oft times hurried enemy arms to off target throws and his "out" entered the score book as a base hit.

With Wills on first, it was a different game. Pitchers became edgy, catchers got antsy and infielders cheated to the bag in anticipation, leaving large holes through second and shortstop.

Maury is down to share this fun and devilment with each group of players signing up for Roger Craig's Christmas week baseball blast.

The best part of the whole thing might be the livin' experience of it. It's a "live-in" camp. Five days on diamonds all around San Diego in groups small enough to insure individual attention and personal evaluation.

And four nights in a "major league" hotel right in the heart of Mission Valley, with coaches and players sharing time and baseball tales in the age old traditions of the game.

The Chicago Cubs are just one of the major league clubs sharing use of Handlery's Master Hosts Inn and Stardust Country Club with Craig's San Diego baseball school. And that's not even mentioning the half dozen National Football Teams that enjoy the facility. It's a major league stop.

There are more big leaguers on the staff, of course. Bob Cluck of the Houston Astros is a co-director and Glen Ezell, of the Pirates, will specialize in fundamentals.

Padre manager John McNamara will look in and give a few pointers, while Mike Ivie, former Padre catchers Fred Kendall and Chris Cannizzaro and Padre coach Joe Amalfitano share their skills and talent.

Like I said, it's the greatest Christmas gift a kid could ever get.

Mayon Fights Onate Tuesday at Coliseum

Boxing replaces wrestling Tuesday night at the S.D. Coliseum when promoter Danny Millsap offers a 26-round card starting at 8 p.m. Wrestling will take a holiday rest until January 11, he said.

Tuesday's main event pits Miguel Mayon, San Diego County light weight champion against Basilio Onate, of Chula Vista. Both fighters are recognized for their buzz-saw style.

Mayon, rested up from an early-in-the-year injury, is anxious to regain his popularity. He is also anxious to hold his title.

A Lemon Grove heavyweight boxer, Gary Gahn, will attempt to be the obstacle in David Wynn's climb up the fistic ladder. Wynn, of Mira Mesa, is undefeated. Both heavyweights have earned the respect of fight fans here by their belting styles of attack.

Four other bouts will round out the card. Tickets are $5, $4 and $2.50 with discounts for seniors and children.

When wrestling returns, a $5,000 Battle Royal will kick off the season. Entries so far are Victor Rivera, Andre the Giant, C h a v o Guererro, Cien Caras, Alfonso Dantes and Mike Stallings. Tickets for both events are available now. The Coliseum is at 15th and E sts.

Dandy Randy in $30,000 Tourney

PHOENIX — Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres and Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles, the Cy Young Award winners as their league's top pitchers in 1976, will compete in the 11th annual American Airlines Golf Classic, announced tournament chairman Randall Malin.

The $30,000 54-hole tournament, which teams one star baseball and football player as partners, will be played January 28-30 at the McCormick Country Club in Scottsdale.

First prize in the better ball event is $10,000, which the partners split.

Besides being outstanding pitchers, Jones and Palmer are fine golfers. Palmer, who can shoot in the 70s, is a former American Airlines Classic winner. The three-time Cy Young Award winner teamed with Willie Richardson, ex-Baltimore Colts wide receiver, for the 1972 championship in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Jones, who throws lefthanded but golfs righthanded, plays to a 13 handicap when he gets in a few rounds of golf.

'Kip Hayes Night' Opens 3-Game Mariners Homestand

The San Diego Mariners are shooting for a growing home record on home ice tonight when they host the Edmonton Oilers at the Sports Arena.

The 7 p.m. encounter has been designated "Kip Hayes Night," with the WHA Mariners donating $1 from each ticket sold to help defray medical costs for the injured county high school football player.

Following the Edmonton game, the club will spend the rest of December close to home, with five of its next six appearances on Sports Arena ice.

San Diego hosts Houston, Saturday, and Quebec, Sunday, makes a short trip to Phoenix, December 22, then comes back to greet New England, December 23, Indianapolis, December 26, and Winnipeg, December 30.

Free Pictures

Saturday's Houston encounter is "Dean's Photo Night," with six-player picture packs distributed to all fans. The players will be available for pre-game autographs. Sunday's Quebec game is "Toys For Tots Night," with $2 off all $5.50 tickets for fans who bring a useable toy for the annual Marine Corps holiday charity drive.

San Diego is unbeaten in 10 Sports Arena tries this season (eight wins and two ties), tying a mark it set last season, but the club will be hard pressed to establish a new standard when Edmonton arrives, Thursday.

The Oilers have done a good job of smoothing out some early problems caused by a raft of injuries and resultant roster changes and San Diego had to come up with two strong third periods to gain a pair of local ice wins over the Canadian squad earlier this year.

One of those player movements involved swapping defensemen with San Diego, the M a r i n e r s acquiring Larry Hornung and shipping Gregg Boddy to Edmonton.

Mariner coach Ron Ingram has seen his skaters bothered by injuries in the last three weeks of play but has had solid results from his replacements.

With wingers John French and Wayne Rivers both out with shoulder separations, Ingram went to the Southern League to call up Tony Cassolato and Tim O'Connell and both responded well.

San Diego also signed winger-defenseman Peter McNamee from Southern League Tidewater last week. McNamee performed for the Mariners last season after being obtained from Phoenix but was not resigned prior to this season.

The Mariners have played 21 of their first 31 games on the road but will close some of that gap this month with six home games remaining in December. Despite the imbalance, San Diego remains in the thick of the WHA's Western League scramble.

Motion picture stars Don Knotts, Bob Stack, Fred MacMurray, Robert Sterling and Claude Akins are also entered as are television's Efram Zimbalist, Jr., from "The F.B.I.," Jack Albertson from "'Chico and the Man," Tige Andrews from "Mod Squad," McLean Stevenson of the show bearing his name and Martin Milner of "Adam 12."

Dick Martin who gained fame on "Laugh In" and Rick Hurst, formerly of "On the Rocks" are other TV notables entered.

Pipeline Means Higher Gas Bill

Pipelines for Southern California Gas Company have caused San Diego area gas bills to climb this month.

Early this month the California Public Utilities Commission granted San Diego Gas & Electric authority to raise rates to recover an additional $1,975,000 over the next four months to offset the increased cost of natural gas the company purchases from SoCal Gas.

SoCal Gas got approval from the PUC to offset its prices to pay for the pipeline which feds SoCal its gas.

The typical monthly residential bill will be 30 cents higher as a result of the increased rate. Average nonresidential bill is expected to rise $1.59.

Unaffected by the increase are "lifeline" residential users of 6 therms or less for cooking, 20 therms for water heating and 55 therms for space heating per month during winter months.

Both utilities must reapply for PUC approval if the increase is to extend beyond March 31.

Public Gets Look

based on population, the city was used for comparison at the meeting.

Carlsbad got this income for a one-month disbursement in November: $7,000 from cigarette tax, $14,400 from highway users fees, $15,500 in lieu motor vehicle license fees, and $100,000 sales tax.

The County OIA predicts Lemon Grove's business will generate $679,000 in sales tax during its first year, its single largest source of revenue.

Estimates on other tax subventions for the 1977-78 fiscal year: franchise tax, $30,000; business license taxes, $50,000; real property transfer taxes, $7,500; alcoholic beverage license fees, $8,000; in lieu, $201,500; gasoline $81,310; Collier-Unruh Gas, $89,849; Engineering funds, $5,000; highway carriers uniform business license tax, $1869 and cigarette, $69,440.

Total first year support from these various taxes is estimated at $1,223,468.

Locally handled revenue will furnish the following additional income, according to County estimates:

Planning fees, $10,000; construction permits, $25,900; fines, forfeitures and penalties, $2,500; interest on investments, $50,000; miscellaneous revenues, $5,000; recreation fees, $15,000 and revenue sharing ($40,000 per quarter starting October 1, 1977) $12,000.

That would bring total city revenue to $1,451,868 for 1977-78, $225,468 more than would be required to meet projected appropriations for Lemon Grove's first year as a city, depending, of course, on the accuracy of the estimates in the OIA study.

Property taxes can not be applied locally during the city's first fiscal year, Dorman said, but would generate $447,307 during fiscal year 1978-79 at a 70-cent tax rate, according to County estimates.

Fiscal year 1979-80 is expected to raise another $526,647 at the same rate.

Dorman said another informational meeting will be held shortly after the holidays, as part of a continuing effort to dispense information about the proposed city.

HOLIDAY GIFT — Business and professional people decided that one of their number should be recipient of this basket of holiday libation and this is the week the winner will be announced.
The contest is to be decided Saturday at the same time and place that the 'Flivver' winner (Details on page one) will be decided — at the L.G. Fire Station Saturday at 7. Winner of both is being decided by a numbered ticket contest.
Displaying the basket of liquor are Lou Ann Holaday, and Leonard Klein. Holaday is in wrecked cars; Klein is in stationery.

City Council Candidates leaning toward not running.

Veterinarian Robert Burns said he intends to run for council. Burns also serve on the San Diego County Veterinary Medicine Assn.

Robert Burns

Law does not restrict individuals from holding more than one elective office simultaneously, Dorman said, but a candidate may not run for more than one seat during the same election.

The top five candidates in the March 8 election will become the city's first councilmen.

The five would become the decision-making body in a Lemon Grove city government, responsible for making city policy decisions and directing the city manager, who they would hire.

Under this arrangement, all city activities would become the responsibility of the city manager who is directed by the council.

A city clerk and city treasurer will also be appointive positions, upon recommendations of the County Office of Intergovernmental Affairs and the Incorporation committee. They felt professional experience, rather than voter popularity, was the more important qualification for those offices.

Essential to all candidates running for council is the success of another March 8 ballot item — Lemon Grove incorporation.

Tax relief and retirement savings for the self-employed.

Keogh. A tax-sheltered retirement plan.

If you're self-employed, you can deposit up to $7500 a year (or 15% of earned income—whichever is less) in savings and deduct it from income on your federal tax return. And up to $2500 (or 10% of net income—whichever is less) can be deducted from income on your California tax return.

Keogh is a real tax shelter and the funds multiply rapidly with daily compounding. See the chart below.

With Keogh, you don't have to pay any tax on interest or principal until you withdraw funds upon retirement (age 59½ or older) when you most likely will be in a much lower tax bracket.

Of course, your savings are insured to $40,000. For more details on how to cut taxes and retire comfortably, call or visit your nearest office of Home Federal.

Account must be opened by December 31 and contributed to by April 15.

If you're not self-employed, let us advise you on the potential of opening an Individual Retirement Account.

Wife's Conviction Follows Husband's on Drug Charge

A Spring Valley woman, whose husband was found guilty for his part in a $2 million drug conspiracy earlier in the week, was convicted Friday for her part in the crime.

Jody Moreno, 26, was declared guilty on similar charges Friday by a federal court jury in San Diego.

The couple, who live at 12175 Highway 94, Spring Valley, were said to have used their hilltop home as a base for heroin dealings. She was convicted of conspiracy possession of about 14 pounds of heroin with intent to sell, sales of more than 2 pounds of heroin and possession of a firearm while committing a felony.

Both she and her husband, Raymond, 40, are to be sentenced Friday upon order of U.S. District Court Judge Gordon Thompson, Jr.

Records show the Morenos and four others have pleaded guilty to conspiracy charges. They were indicted by a federal grand jury in September after a roundup netted a cache of heroin, $191,000 in cash, 25 weapons and an assortment of stolen property.

The Morenos were arrested in a Lemon Grove market's parking lot. Testimony showed that they were carrying loaded weapons when arrested by undercover Narcotics Task Force agents.

It was testified that money and heroin was found in the couple's house in dog food bags hidden in the attic.

Parents Rebut

Dear Editor,

The following is a letter submitted to the Lemon Grove School Board from hurt and indignant parents concerning the remarks made about their school, Monterey Heights Elementary School, by the report of election loser Chuck Pennell.

To The Lemon Grove School Board:

The report made by Mr. Pennell to this Board regarding the input he received during his campaign is not accurate. The parents listed below did not supply that input and they wonder why their school was singled out to receive the accusations.

Our teachers and principal are of the highest caliber. They devote most of their lives to our children. The equipment and learning environment may not be as modern as those of higher taxed based districts, but when it comes to the personnel, no school in the district is better.

A lot of our teachers grew up in Lemon Grove and that makes for more concerned and more interested teachers. Our teachers teach each child in their room with the same love and concern, regardless of family origin.

We don't have federal funds for E.C.E. (Early Childhood Education) yet, but our volunteer program is very active.

We have approximately 50 parents helping in the classroom each week and they tell what a wonderful staff of professional teachers we have.

The parents listed below support our school and we question the source of input of Mr. Pennell's report.

Comments Clarified

Dear Editor,

It is with pleasure (and some relief) that I read the favorable comments toward Monterey Heights School expressed by PTA members, Mrs. Stevenson, and the Fulkersons. It is widely recognized that people who are critical of something are usually most often heard from first.

In addition, I should point out that the comments expressed by these persons who were at home when I went door-to-door in the last election are in no way representative of the community. This method of sampling opinions is unreliable and invalid. My report was simply a collection of scattered comments from citizens who expressed their opinion.

Anyone connected with the Monterey Heights School realizes the staff in general are hard working and dedicated to our children. They are supported by active and interested parents. It is for these reasons that are clearly present at all schools which allow us to rightfully claim that the Lemon Grove School District is the best in San Diego County.

Chuck Pennell

Convention Speakers Say It's Time To Tell of Schools' Success Story

Accomplishments of public education throughout the state and the nation since the turn of the century are well-kept secrets, and it's time to point with pride to the successes while we try to solve current problems.

This was the common theme of remarks delivered December 4 in San Diego by Wilson Riles, California Superintendent of Public Instruction and Carolyn Warner, Superintendent of Public Instruction in Arizona, at the annual joint conference of the California School Boards Association and the Association of California Administrators.

"It's no longer enough simply to do the job in the classroom and expect automatic support from a grateful public," Riles told an overflow crowd at the Civic Theatre. "We must be assertive in letting people know about our problems, and we must not be diffident in sharing news of our successes as well."

"If you have a commitment to excellence, and that commitment is reflected in educational achievement, and you don't tell the public, who will?" Riles asked. His answer: "No one will!"

"We don't say much about our successes," Warner told conferes, "but that's our job."

Warner, given a standing ovation at the conclusion of her address, said the time is long past that we should be telling "the other side of the story," that education in this country is one of the world's all-time successes."

"We must remind the people that in 1900 only 13 per cent of the population in this country graduated from high school, and only two per cent from college," she said. "Today, some 75 per cent graduate from high school and 10 per cent from college. And we ain't through yet!"

Riles, pointing to the massive changes in needs on a national level in public education, said, "No society in the history of the world has ever attempted to do what we're trying to do — to educate not merely the children of the elite but every student in this nation to his fullest capacity. That concept came relatively late even in this country."

"You are in a different situation when you are attempting to educate not only the motivated top 20 per cent, but everyone. Not only that, but we've been asked to feed them breakfast, feed them lunch, provide sex education, provide moral guidelines, teach driving, and provide security."

"On top of all that," Riles continued, "we're trying to do it with a school system that was designed 65 years ago!"

Joe Brooks, executive secretary of the California School Boards Assn., made some remarks about self-serving school board members at his talk during the convention.

"Too many times we hear elected officials casting votes not on the basis of what they feel is right or best, but in obligation to supporters in terms of helping themselves get to a higher office," he said.

"We're all aware the public has lost trust in elected officials because they feel they serve not on the basis of what is right but on the basis of what will help their supporters," he added.

"People will be behind you if they see you're coming from a real, human, personal point of conviction," Brooks said.

The joint conference was held December 3-5 at the San Diego Convention and Performing Arts Center.

Early Entry Kindergarten New Lemon Grove Policy

Children who attain age five might not have to wait until the beginning of the new school year to enroll in kindergarten in Lemon Grove.

The school district made permanent a policy of early entry for kindergarteners at a recent meeting. It was adopted on a trial basis last year.

Under the plan, a child may register for early admission up to ten school days prior to his fifth birthday. Early kindergarten classes are started on a space available basis. All existing regular school programs wil have priority over rooms.

Morning-only classes of up to 33 will be set up where possible.

Early entery to kindergarten does not mean an early transfer to first grade, however. Early admission to grade one is determined according to guidelines established in the state's education code and upon recommendation of the teacher and principal.

A full year in kindergarten is determined defined as a minimum of 150 days of enrollment in one school year prior to the close of school.

Pupils enrolled during the last 150 days in the school year will likely be enrolled in kindergarten again in the fall.

It is expected that many early enrollees will need to spend between 13 and 17 months in regular kindergarten classes prior to admission to first grade.

The school's policy for early entry does not imply mid-year promotions to first grade after a cumulative total of 150 days.

The only change in the policy from that of the trial year was to delete requirement for a parent's conference with the school principal.

Two Tax-Reducing Petitions Ready

Two petitions have been submitted to the office of this newspaper for those who are interested in attempting to get initiative measures on the next ballot.

One is the "Citizens Petition to Lower Property Taxes". It proposes to reduce real property taxes to one percent of the ad valorum and prohibits special assessments.

It claims it will save property owners $6.8 billion every year, restore government control to the people and remove the threat of home foreclosure from millions of American homes.

The other requires a majority approval by voters before salary increases or expenses are given to the governor or other constitutional officer, member of Legislature or judge.

It is claimed state costs would be reduced $10 million annually and local costs $6-$8 million annually.

Such petitions may be required from sponsoring organizations — the name of each are on the petitions.

Valhalla Parents Find Cost-Free Bus Idea Is $1200 Expense

Some East County parents learned last week that it takes more than gasoline and drivers to operate a school bus service.

Parents concerned for the safety of their children who must walk to Valhalla High have been complaining about the lack of sidewalks on two thoroughfares leading to the school. They want bus rides for their children, despite the school's policy of busing only students who live 2½ miles or more away.

The Grossmont Union High School District governing board turned down the parents' latest alternative suggestion last week, Monday.

Parents recommended that the buses stop and pick up students living within the 2½ mile limit if vacant seats were available.

The proposal would not increase the cost of transportation, or so they thought.

Not so, said Assist. Supt. John Barrons in a report to the board. The additional service would cost the District an estimated $1200 for additional record keeping.

Students riding within the distance limit must be accounted for in office paper work in order to keep proper records of the service, said Barrons.

The board rejected the suggestion of the parents and upheld its present policy.

Jobless Drop .4%

California's unemployment rate dropped from 9.8 per cent in October to 9.4 per cent in November, it was reported by the State's Employment Development Department.

Why You Serve; Why You Don't

Jury May Get You in January

English speaking citizens of the United States over 18 years of age and registered voters who have never been convicted of a felony, are likely candidates for jury duty.

Those called for jury duty may have wondered how they were selected and those who haven't been called, may have wondered why not.

The San Diego Jury Commissioner is charged with the task of providing prospective jurors for all the courts in the County except the North County courts. The clerk of the court for the North County Judicial District provides jurors for the municipal courts in that area of the county.

January Draft

Every January, a computer chooses prospective jurors, on a random basis from voter registration lists. There is no predetermined make-up of age, sex or geographical location involved in the selection process. Each prospective juror is then sent a questionnaire.

The questionnaire is a screening device to determine who is eligible for jury duty and is not a summons for service.

"After the questionnaires are returned and reviewed, we determine who will be summoned for jury duty," said Assistant Jury Commissioner William Pierce.

"Every January we send out about 30,000 questionnaires. When the screening process is completed it usually narrows the number of prospective jurors down to 10,000. These 10,000 are certified and summoned to duty but usually about one third of these people are excused from jury duty for one reason or another. So all in all, we end up with roughly 7,000 people a year who serve on juries," said Pierce.

"We understand that circumstances sometimes change between the time the questionnaire is sent back and the time the person is paged to duty. If this is the case, the Office of the Jury Commissioner makes every attempt to schedule duty to the convenience of the person," he said.

Excuse Me, Please

But Pierce pointed out that a person must prove undue hardship before he or she is excused from jury duty. According to Pierce, under State Statute the court is allowed to excuse a person from jury duty upon finding that that jury service would entail undue hardship on the person or the public served by that person.

He listed poor health and financial hardship as legitimate reasons often claimed and recognized as grounds for dismissal.

The duration of the service is usually 20 working days and jurors are paid $5 a day and reimbursed 15 cents a mile one way.

Many businesses understand the importance of a citizen participating in the judicial process and compensate their employees with full pay while they are sitting on juries, according to Pierce.

"Once in a great while we run across a person, who after several warnings, refuses to report for duty. When this happens the person runs the risk of being found in contempt of court, being slapped with a fine, and order to report for duty," said Pierce.

The Professional Reject

In the past, law enforcement officers, teachers, doctors and lawyers could legally be excused from jury service because of profession, but this no longer holds true. As of January 1, 1976 no one's profession is reason to claim exemption from service.

On television stories it is common to see juries deliberating for days at a time locked up overnight in hotel rooms away from their families. But Pierce said it is rare to find that much drama surrounding the juries in San Diego county.

The last time that happened was during a murder case about a year ago. It happens so rarely that prospective jurors shouldn't even give it a second thought," he said. "When it does happen, the judge will always forewarn members of the jury so they can pack an overnight case and make any necessary personal arrangements."

Pierce stressed the importance of the role of the juror in the judicial process.

"Without jurors the judicial process would be crippled. It is inherent in our nation's constitution that all persons living in these United States are entitled to trial by a jury of their peers. In order to ensure that right, the responsibility ultimately rests on the shoulders of the citizens of this country to respond when they are called upon to take part in our judicial process," said Pierce.

Do-It-Yourself Burglary

Enough parts to build a motorcycle were stolen from the premises of Roderick Anthony Lagrinas at 860 Grand ave., Spring Valley on December 8, while he was on vacation.

Taken were a speedometer, tachometer, handlebars, clutch lever, roll bar, gas tank, sissy car, fenders, battery, tail light, rear wheel and exhaust system.

His intent was clear. He also took Lagrinas' tool box. The loss was assessed to be $900.
